

Comissioning an Animal Facility

From my point of view there are many points that need to be taken into consideration when setting up or refurbishing an animal facility. The most important of all is that the engineering department has an understanding of the requirements and the legal guidelines which need to be followed. The understanding of these issues varies immensely depending on the establishment.... Read More

Open and inclusive recruitment is the way forward

Employing people from a wide range of backgrounds, ages and life experiences can add significant value to organisations. Open and inclusive recruitment processes mean that employers have a greater choice of talent from which to choose suitable candidates from. It is a proven fact that diverse workforces lead to better staff retention rates, a great understanding of different markets and a more creative mix of people. Diversity is not only good in itself but also good for business..... Read More

Using Social Networking to recruit

Recruitment methods have evolved rapidly over the last decade – advertising in the local newspaper may still be a valid form of recruitment advertising but used in isolation can now seem archaic when all the different ways of reaching your target audience are considered...Read More
